Locations of Military Superfund Sites:

Ft. Wainwright is located within the Tanana and Tanacross Native language groups region at the northern border of Fairbanks. Both the Chena and Tanana Rivers run through Ft. Wainwright. The Native villages of Minto and Nenana are within 50 miles of the military base, Rampart and Hanley Hot Springs are within 100 miles, and all are downstream of the Chena or Tanana Rivers or their tributaries.

Eielson Air Force Base is located in the Tanana River Valley within the Tanana and Tanacross Native language groups region, approximately 34 miles south of Fairbanks, 10 miles southeast of the city of North Pole, and immediately adjacent to the community of Moose Creek on the northern border of the base, and the Selcha area on the southern border.

Ft. Richardson and Elmendorf Air Force Base are located within the traditional Athabaskan lands and the Tanana language region on the northern boundary of the Municipality of Anchorage on Cook Inlet.

Adak Naval Air Station is located within the traditional lands of the Aleut peoples on Adak Island in the Aleutian Chain. The island, near the western end of the Chain, is within the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge.
